The transformation of Hang Seng's Head Office Building to create a more dynamic working environment is a major milestone in the Bank's ongoing journey as a forward-thinking, customer-centric organisation.

The comprehensive upgrade includes the integration of smart, future-proof technologies that facilitate different ways of working, promote wellbeing, improve sustainability and support service experiences enhancement for customers. Activity-based working environments, social hubs and digital facilities foster flexible and efficient work styles and enhance collaboration, innovation and creativity. A range of new health and wellness facilities are also among the enhancements introduced that aim to ensure the Bank's people thrive professionally and personally.

Since the project is located at the bank's business hub in Central, the renovation works had to be carried out on a floor-by-floor basis to minimise disruption to its normal operations. Hang Seng Bank aspires to be a leading driver of ESG in the local banking sector. A full range of energy saving technologies has been widely adopted to ensure the Head Office Building provides an environmentally friendly and healthier workspace by achieving LEED & WELL "Gold" rating. Despite the adverse impact of the COVID-19 pandemic, the project was satisfactorily completed in terms of cost, time, safety, health and quality aspects under the excellent management of the project team.
